Note: I am rarely in my office outside of office hours, so if you would like to reach me, please email me. I will get back to you usually within 23 hours, although do not expect a speedy response on nights and weekends.

Section policies:

Section grade will be primarily determined by attendance. Don't stress about it, though, since it's only 5% of your grade, and there are more than 10 sections. Please be here by 10 past the hour, and I will not take any excuses. That means no “it's nuclear winter and it took me an hour to get out of my bomb shelter,” and no “my shark ate my significant other who ate my cow who ate my dog who ate my cat who ate my car keys.” Yeah, it's Friday morning, but I'm here, and I live half an hour away. We're not in middle school anymore, however, so if you're absent, I will not call your parents.

Should you decide to show up, most sections will be divided into two parts, one part associated with the clarification of concepts from lectures, and another part usually consisting of some sort of “fun” activity! Please do ask questions, and do discuss concepts with your peers, and engage in lively debate! However, personal attacks and other inappropriate comments are not tolerated under any circumstances.

The other portion of your course grade has to do with your RPP hours. This gives you a chance to see firsthand what kind of research is going on in the Department, and whether a career in Psychology is right for you. This has to be the easiest 5% of the grade ever.
